WHY CHOOSE HANDCRAFTED PRODUCTS?

Handmade is a celebration of our contemporary lives and community culture – not a mass-imposed, one-size-fits-all end product, where everything looks the same and is easily boxed up. Handmade is about people and not corporate companies competing – supporting local artisans Handcrafted epitomizes time and effort, higher quality and attention to detail of each piece of work. It's about the skill of each maker, the technical ingenuity of the maker, the magic of an individual's imagination.

Handcrafted products are "green"; that is, work done by hand takes less energy than a mass production assembly line, which makes it more environmentally sustainable.

One of the most prevalent, although least quantifiable reason people report for choosing to purchase handcrafted goods is that they just like having something that didn't come from a big company. The nature of handmade goods means that there are fewer of them, so whatever they're wearing or eating or adding to their home is as unique as they are.

Handcrafted products are easier to buy and more popular than ever, because of the Internet. There is a burgeoning industry of handmade marketplaces online – more and more people are embracing handcrafted goods online and in brick and mortar stores.

MASS PRODUCTION Economies of Scale

Product lines can go either of two directions, the mass produced route or the handcrafted/handmade route. Both models has its merit and disadvantages. What does value mean for the consumer? Value is that ideal combination of price and quality for a product or service.

Mass production means bulk buying and this forces the lowering of prices down the line, mainly in the production of raw materials. Lower production costs ensure that the large-scale companies can make more profit while selling, at what first appears to be, a low price – a bargain price.

Dig a bit deeper and what this really means, is that many people worldwide are forced into jobs with little pay and this has a knock-on effect for those countries, in so far as they cannot develop, cannot sustain their environments and any adverse condition, such as a drought, has a far more adverse impact upon them than if they were wealthier.

So when you look at that $2 mug from your local store, it's not a bargain. It will cost you more in hidden charges than what you initially paid for it.

Mass production is now turning to small crafters for help. Main Street shops want their product to replicate the handmade feel, but the difference can be likened to that between a diamond and a cubic zirconium. Both are good, but which one would you cherish a whole lot more?
